Sustainable Development Goals (SDG)

Mapping to Program Curricula

St. Aloysius College focuses on mainstreaming sustainable development goals (SDGs) within the college curriculum to educate global citizens who can address the most critical problems facing the world. St. Aloysius College understands the need to integrate the goals into its curriculum; the goals set forth by the United Nations in 2015 are a global universal call to action to bring an end to poverty, preserve our planet, and guarantee all human beings' peace and prosperity.

Some of the most critical channels in which St. Aloysius College ties the college curriculum to relevant SDG goals includes incorporating the SDG principles and objectives in various subjects across disciplines. Through courses like environment and sustainable tourism, development and environmental economics, economics of growth and development, agricultural economics, and environmental chemistry, students have grasped concepts on sustainability, conservation, and biodiversity, which practically align with SDG 13 and SDG 15. Furthermore, the social sciences sub-fields provide students with more exposure to poverty, equality, and social justice, associating it with SDG 1 and SDG 10.

Thus, embedding these themes in the college's curriculum has enabled the students to form a holistic perception of various global issues' interconnectedness regardless of geography, people's origins, or background. Moreover, St. Aloysius College also developed several interdisciplinary projects and initiatives with a particular focus on the SDGs. As a result, the students received a chance to use their knowledge in practical terms when trying to address existing issues from a sustainable perspective. For example, the students have the opportunity to participate in community development projects focusing on eliminating poverty and hunger, or enhancing gender equality and quality of education.

Through engaging in such projects, the students acquire practical experience and a sense of accountability for the fulfillment of the SDGs.

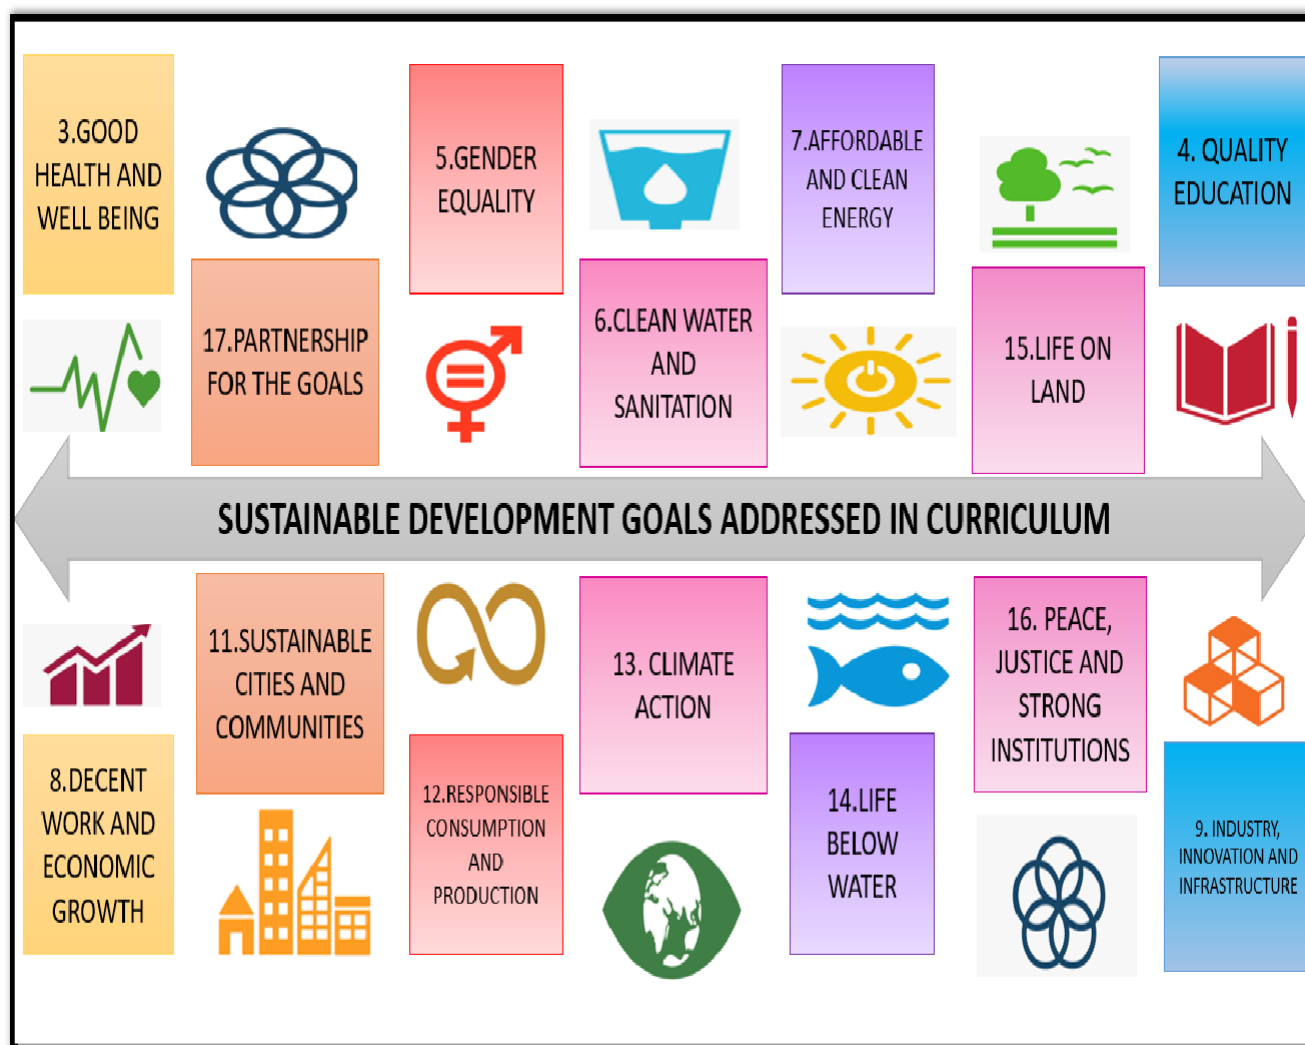

Although the focus of St. Aloysius College remains on academic work, it also engages in numerous extra-curricular activities that enhance students' awareness of and response to the SDGs. This encompasses seminars, workshops, and awareness drives on various topics, from climate change to sustainable development and social justice. In this way, the college fosters a culture of engagement and activism around the SDGs, ensuring that its students are not only knowledgeable about the goals but also passionate about contributing to achieving them. In addition to such efforts, St. Aloysius College has taken steps to incorporate sustainability and social responsibility principles into its operations. Thus, the college prioritizes sustainable practices in its infrastructure and resource management.

Lastly, through such initiatives, the college inculcates into the minds of its students one of the SDGs' foundations — the urgent need to live compatible with the planet and its dwellers.

In conclusion, St. Aloysius College is taking measures to connect the SDGs to the various programs offered by the college. It embeds the SDG in the academic, co-curricular, and assessment framework. By doing so, the college has the potential of producing an all-around student who is not only academically competent but also has the potential of making sustainable decisions and being well-placed in the workplace. St. Aloysius College achieves the objective of holistically imparting expansive knowledge and skills by embedding several SDGs into its programs of learning.

Values Enshrined in NEP

Mapping to Curriculum

St. Aloysius College has aligned its curriculum to the values enshrined in the National Education Policy (NEP). NEP seeks to ensure the students' holistic development through the molding of critical thinking, creativity, and ethical values. Although the college is academically oriented, the students are well-equipped in matters involving moral uprightness. One of the principles promoted in the NEP is the enhancement of ethical and moral values. St. Aloysius College has integrated this value through the curriculum that enables students to take a course in the reflection of the moral dilemma, the integrity of the students, and their self-esteem.

For example, the college offers courses like business ethics and human values, human rights, and value education, which challenge students to think critically about ethical issues and make principled decisions in their personal and professional lives.

Alternately, the NEP also insists on instilling a spirit of inquiry, creativity, and scientific temper. In this regard, St. Aloysius College has tried to offer a comprehensive selection of courses in various areas of arts, humanities, and sciences that require the students to think creatively, question, and carry out research and innovation. In the same line, the college is also involved in various extra-curricular activities such as debating, creative writing competition, and research. The college activities organized include Bharat Business Conclave, Fundraising, Ad-Mad Show, poster competition, and industrial visits, which align with values enshrined in NEP such as holistic development, critical thinking and creativity, ethical and moral values, and lifelong learning. Furthermore, the NEP also places emphasis on promoting a deep understanding and respect for India's vibrant heritage, culture, and diversity

This value has been at the core of the NEP, which St. Aloysius College had actualized by including courses in Indian history, literature, arts, and philosophy in its curriculum. In addition, the college has sponsored cultural programs, festivals, and seminars, in which students are given a platform to actively engage with India's diverse cultural milieus and take part in various cultural practices and cultural exchange. Another important value that the NEP alluded to was the promotion of empathy and concern for others. In this regard, A college has offered workshops and innovative short courses in diversity, inclusion, and social justice. The college recognizes the value of community service and volunteerism and thus, encourages student outreach programs.

In doing so, the college ensures it inculcates in its students a profound sense of empathy, compassion, and regard for each person, regardless of their background or situation. In conclusion, St. Aloysius College has shown a strong commitment to achieving the mapping of the values embedded in the NEP into its curriculum. With its wide array of courses offered, extracurricular activities, and holistic approach to students' education, it guarantees the learners are not only knowledgeable but also decent, empathetic, and virtuous creatures who are already up to the task of making a decent addition to society to receive them. St. Aloysius College's aspirations provide an exemplary example of how educational organizations can indeed express the morality of NEP in action and promote the well-rounded development of students.
