Title of the Practice

“Mixed Learning: A Blended Approach towards enhanced students e-learning experience”

Objectives of the Practice

The objectivity is to ensure the learners’ progressive development through collaboration of e-learning to face2face learning, nurturing individual self-experience.

The Context

This approach is to overcome the challenge of catering individual students diverse learning capacity, availability of learning content, student’s progressive assessment and real time learning experience of e-learning.

The Practice

This approach aimed, on-time delivery of students’ growing demands towards e-learning. Tailored e- teaching techniques, e-notes, e-Lectures and through e-learning resources, has proved to have effective learning outcome. Resource availability and faculty skill enhancement were small blocks, which were addressed through conduction of In-house FDP and workshops.

Evidence of Success

To inculcate a blended hybrid teaching and learning in the institution, the management initiated various training programs for the faculties, procured high video conferencing tools for online classes, LAN network in all classrooms, E-notes, E-lectures and E-books for the students as per their learning capacities were benchmarks to this initiative.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required

Students' preconceived notion for traditional classrooms being effective, their varied learning capacity, their responsiveness, higher rate of absenteeism and poor network connectivity were certain problems during this phase of transformation.

Other information

Breaking down the traditional walls of teaching, blended with present day technology this approach has fostered, student’s self-pace individual learning capacity, increased satisfaction and higher information retention.
