On 7th September, 2024 ,

On this day,

Teachers likely focus on efforts to improve English literacy among school children in rural and underprivileged areas. In rural areas, there is a severe lack of English books, libraries, digital learning platforms, and exposure to spoken English.

There is a significant gap in English literacy between rural and urban areas, with rural children having less exposure to English. Grammar is a fundamental aspect of language learning, especially for primary school students. Teachers teach using real-life examples and simple sentences to explain concepts .

OUTCOME

The ISR campaign's focus on English literacy aims to boost students' academic performance, communication skills, and future employability, particularly in a globalized economy.
